

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jennifer Memolo, MA, PTA is from Alabama but currently lives in Omaha, Nebraska, where she teaches in the Physical Therapist Assistant program at Clarkson College. She received her BA in English at Birmingham-Southern College in Birmingham, Alabama, and went on to receive her MA in English/Creative Writing at East Carolina University in Greenville, North Carolina. She received her associate of science in a Physical Therapist Assistant program from Nash Community College in 2008 (Rocky Mount, North Carolina), at which time she moved to Omaha to work in inpatient rehabilitation and acute care. She has also worked in a skilled nursing facility, has served as Rehabilitation Director, and has worked for home health. In addition to teaching in the Physical Therapist Assistant associate of science and bachelor of science programs, she also teaches graduate level writing classes for nursing students at Clarkson College.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to thank the following faculty in the Clarkson College Physical Therapist Assistant Program: Caitlin, Michael, Jessica, Kim, Greta, and Karen for offering advice, support, and feedback, as well as patience while I wrote this book. Additional thanks goes to Clarkson College for allowing me access to labs and equipment, as well as LifeCare Center of Elkhorn, Kohl's Pharmacy, and Shannon Struby for letting me take and use pictures. Many thanks to my family for their support and feedback during this learning process. Thanks also to Tony Schiavo at SLACK Incorporated and Mia L. Erickson for their feedback and assistance as they guided me through this experience.
